

Bulletin 03 / 2024

Effective for e tickets and EMD's issued on/after 14 MARCH 2024.

SOUTH AFRICAN AIRWAYS BAGGAGE REGULATIONS

Not applicable on any code-share flights except where mentioned in the policy.

- 1.1 The checked baggage allowance for South African Airways for international, regional and domestic flight is based on piece allowance with maximum weights & dimensions.
- 1.2 The checked baggage allowances on South African Airways operated flights for adults, children & infants are set out below. In order for South African Airways to carry baggage without additional charge, the checked baggage must not exceed these allowances.

(RESO 302) Baggage Provisions Selection Criteria

- 2.1 If you purchase a ticket with all flights fully operated by South African Airways, South African Airways baggage policies apply.
- 2.2 The free baggage allowance & additional (excess) baggage charge policies for tickets involving joint international transport services provided by South African Airways & foreign airlines have been adjusted. The free baggage allowance for joint transport service is based on the policy of the most significant carrier (MSC) in the trip, which is explained below:

- 2.2.1 Travel from one area to another area (but not the within the area) the MSC carrier would be determined:
 - 2.2.1.1 Here the MSC would be the carrier transporting the passenger across the Atlantic for example – JNB SA X/SAO JJ SCL
 - 2.2.1.1.1 The MSC carrier will be SA.

2.3 At any time if the passenger stops the MSC carrier will change – JNB SA SAO JJ SCL

2.3.1 SA will be the MSC carrier JNB SAO and then JJ for the sector SAO SCL.

THE USA DOT AND THE CAA OF CANADA HAVE MADE A RULING THAT WHEN A CARRIER STARTS A JOURNEY AND THAT CARRIERS BAGGAGE ALLOWANCE APPLIES TO/FROM THE USA/ CANADA FOR HIS COMPLETE JOURNEY.

3.1 If travel is JNB SA LON UA NYC (SA is first carrier & therefore the MSC carrier)

3.1.1 The MSC carrier will be SA

3.2 If travel is JNB SA NYC UA LAX

3.2.1 The MSC carrier will be SA, as SA is the first operating carrier & transatlantic carrier.

• BUT

3.3 If travel originates the USA – LAX UA NYC SA JNB or LAX UA LHR SA JNB

3.3.1 The MSC carrier is UA. As they are the first operating carrier they will be the deciding carrier – the transatlantic carrier (MSC as defined by IATA) will not be selected.

3.4 If travel originates the USA – LAX B6 NYC SA JNB

3.4.1 The MSC carrier could be SA, even though the first operating carrier is B6, they have decided that – the transatlantic carrier will be the MSC carrier; therefore SA has been selected as the MSC.

3.4.2 The difference between the two above examples is the carrier starting the journey within the USA, and the airline will decide when filing their baggage allowance if they will accept the allowance of an interline partner or not.

3.4.3 Therefore, it is important to check on the fare display whose baggage allowance (BG CXR: SA) will be utilised. Irrespective of whose ticket stock the ticket will be issued on / or whose fare the system is utilising.

3.4.4.2 Please note that JNB to Middle East is a change of Area.

3.4.5 At any time if the passenger stops the MSC carrier will change –

3.4.6 Apply within Africa –

When a through fare has been issued then the first international carrier will apply – JNB SA X/HRE KQ NBO KQ X/ HRE SA JNB – the SA baggage allowance will apply on the forward journey & on the return KQ baggage allowance will apply as they are the first international carrier for the return journey.

South African Airways Baggage-Regulations

When a through fare has been issued then first international carrier will apply – TET SA X/JNB SA LOS SA X/JNB SA TET the SA baggage allowance will not apply on the forward journey as this is operated by other Airline and they are the first International carrier & on the return SA baggage allowance will apply as they are the first international carrier for the return journey.

3.5 If the passenger, in all of the above examples at any point is not able to through check, then the MSC carrier will change and the applicable carrier's baggage allowance will apply

3.7 JNB SA HRE KQ NBO KQ HRE SA JNB – JNB HRE – SA baggage allowance / HRE NBO – KQ baggage allowance & the same on the return. The MSC only applies if the passenger is able to through check (therefore it cannot be a stopover / night stop).
